Graduate Degrees for the Greater Good

The Adlerian approach to counseling is rooted in social interest above self-interest. We believe cooperation and collaboration lead to impactful contribution, and equality for all leads the way for both individual and societal health.

A Word From Our President

Adler Graduate School is a role model for the counseling profession's tradition of identifying strengths and promoting individual, family, and community growth and wellness. Our entire community—faculty, staff, and fellow students—is committed to maintaining an environment that promotes collaboration and a strong sense of belonging.

Our graduates are positioned to become mental health professionals who lead the effort to transform society by empowering individuals to overcome their challenges and to contribute to the wellness of their communities. AGS-trained professionals are grounded in professional ethics, solid clinical competence, and a commitment to providing services that promote equity, inclusivity, and accessibility.

We would love for you to share your talents and unique perspectives with our community. Join us in transforming the world one individual, family, or community at a time.

Solange Ribeiro

Solange Ribeiro, PhD
President, Adler Graduate School

“

I expected to simply learn about theories and techniques, but my experience has been so much more than that. Adler Graduate School is rooted in community and driven by social justice, and it has been wonderful making meaningful connections with my professors, advisors, and fellow students—even while being fully remote.”
